

Managed Technology

Businesses today rely upon numerous pieces of technology. These pieces, in turn, form systems which may include servers, computers, printers, hand-held devices, network access devices, and everything in between. These systems are becoming more complex as technology changes ever more rapidly. Businesses require expertise to keep their technology functioning properly, and to resolve problems caused by software issues, power loss, network disruption, or breakage.

Our flexible plans include the option to buy support in hourly blocks, to be billed a-la-carte, or to set an on-going monthly maintenance fee.

MSPC's Managed Technology Services program can provide your business with this expertise and serve as your outsourced IT department – acting as part of your team to keep your systems running smoothly. By providing all of these services, you can spend your time managing your business and not your technology.

Proactive and Responsive

Our team begins with a thorough assessment of your current systems and will assist you in designing a plan to meet your technological needs – not only for today, but for the future. Recommendations are designed to help you manage your growth and keep your data secure.

We offer 24-hour support services. You can sleep at night knowing that our team is on-call and monitoring your mission-critical technology systems at all times.

Our entire team is located in the New York metropolitan area, allowing us to easily visit your location to perform maintenance or conduct training.

Highly Customizable

Our team is able to quickly ramp-up the level of services at any time and reduce the level of services when needed. This level of customization allows our clients to be sure that their operations will always have the appropriate level of support, without paying for services which aren't needed.

Our flexible plans include the option to buy support in hourly blocks, to be billed a-la-carte, or to set an on-going monthly maintenance fee.
